Gilbert and Sullivan in Vernacular

One of the student organizations at the University of Manitoba is giving a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado." The Manitoban, in order to aid the average patron better to understand and appreciate the niceties of the production (and just incidentally, of course, to publicize it) is printing three interpretive articles on the comic opera. These articles are designed to provide, in language and in verbal illustrations that can be understood by all, a detailed explanation of the plot and action of "The Mikado" so that patrons might not be obliged to overuse their cerebrums (or should it be cerebra) in keeping abreast of the winding development of the work, they being, of course, so unfathomable.

The little classic in interpretive writing is entitled:

THE MIKADO —An Unexpurgated Treatise (in three parts)

It begins:

After a struggle with the curtain backstage it flutters up to reveal the courtyard of Ko Ko's Palace in the thriving little Japanese town of Titipu. Japan, Asia. Standing around in attitudes suggestive of native drawings done by Grade 2 Art students are a group of Japanese noblemen. These suddenly come to, mutter the Japanese equivalent of "love" and immediately elaborate on those qualities which go to make up an oriental aristocrat.

Later, it has this to say about Nanki-Poo:

Now Nanki-Poo is no wallflower; he's been around and he proceeds to tell his new-found pals about his accomplishments down the path of romance.

As Nanki finishes his recitation, Pish-Tush, a noble lord, pops up and questions Nanki-Poo, who in response gives us the low-down on Yum Yum.

At the completion of the first of the three articles appears this little appendix: "Well, what will Nanki-Poo do now? Don't miss Tuesday's exciting episode when we meet Yum Yum..."

Aside to Sir William Schwenck Gilbert: Do not stir from your sleep, sir. Do not allow yourself to be roused from your hard-earned tranquillity to turn over and over again. These are but University students.

Toronto Gets the Bird...

So many pigeons are flocking the University of Toronto campus that if any more are added the grounds will assume the semblance of a National Reserve, says the Varsity.

These birds are interesting themselves in student life and at times even seek the benefits of higher education. One of them, from the window-ledge of the classroom, recently attended a lecture in Religious Knowledge. The remarks he made, in his peculiar language, were too much for the concentrating students, however, and his departure was subtly suggested when the window was closed.

The pigeons prefer to be fed while resting on the hands, shoulders, or heads of coeds. The Varsity advances a reason for this: "They can thus warm their feet and, at the same time, wipe off accumulated mud and snow."

Says the Varsity: "Two second year coeds were seen one snowy day recently sallying forth armed with pigeon food and peanuts. Ten minutes later they were feeding: fifty pigeons, five sparrows, two squirrels, one large black Newfoundland dog, and three children."

Around the Globe

Washington: January 30.—Lease-lend Bill passes committee of House as amendments rejected. With administration supporters in clear command of the situation, the United States House Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee today rejected a series of amendments to the lease-lend bill and then voted its final approval of that measure 17-8.

Cairo: January 30.—Fiercest battle of Libyan drive marks British capture of Derna. The third major Italian bastion to fall in Libya—Derna, 175 miles west of the Egyptian frontier—was occupied today by Australian and British troops.

London: January 30.—Britain harassed by daylight raids. Apparently aimless raids by single planes over the southern and eastern parts of England and a few planes over Scotland; machine-gunning of small towns after a few bombs were dropped causing some deaths and injuries and the biggest attack for some time on the Dover balloon barrage.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY HEARS DR. C. W. HENDEL

Former Dean of Arts Addresses Open Meeting

GENERAL PUBLIC INVITED

'Reflections on Spirit of Man' to Be Subject

Addressing an open meeting of the Philosophical Society in room 44 of the Arts Building at 8.15 this evening will be Dr. Charles W. Hendel, former Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science. Dr. Hendel, who has occupied the Chair of Moral and Social Philosophy at Yale University since leaving McGill last year, is visiting the university primarily in order to address this meeting.

Former Dean of McGill.

Prior to leaving for Yale, Dr. Hendel was Professor of Philosophy at McGill and Head of the Department of Philosophy in addition to occupying the post of Dean. During the past year, he has been active in endeavouring to further the movement in the United States advocating more efficacious aid to Britain.

The address which he plans to deliver this evening is substantially the same one which he delivered before a meeting of the American Philosophical Association on the occasion of his inauguration as President last December. This Association is an organization whose membership is comprised of professors of Philosophy of various American colleges. His subject will be "Reflections on the Spirit of Man" and will include an historical survey of the development of great ideas.

Sadie Spurs Sad Dentist's Bid for Date

States Mouth-Maulers Have No Appeal

by godolphin

The other day we encountered a chap who is in Dentistry. He looked sad. It was apparent that something was wrong, so he was asked "What's wrong, Has your father died?" "No," he said, "it's something far worse than that. I don't think I'll get an invitation from Sadie Hawkins." "Why not? You're a tall, good-looking lad, just the type the girls go for." "That may be so, but the trouble is that we dentists, unlike you Artsmen, never see any co-eds for weeks on end. We spend our days, from early morning to late at night, down at the clinic and never have the time nor the energy for dates." "Oh well, if that's the case, I think I can fix you up. There must be lots of girls who would be willing to take out an Adonis like you."

Forthwith, your observer went up to the Arts Building and, meeting a nice-looking co-ed, said "Would you like to do your bit for humanity by taking out a tall, handsome fellow next week?" "Would I," she exclaimed, "Boy, oh boy, I'll take you to the Slide and the Spree." This unforeseen turn of events was staggering to say the least; but a chance like this is not to be had every day, (Continued on Page Four)

U.S. PRESIDENT TOPIC AT CLUB

R.V.C. Historical Society Discussed Theodore Roosevelt

Jean Clark Was Guest Speaker at Meeting Last Night

"Theodore Roosevelt" was the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the R.V.C. Historical Society held last night. Jean Clark traced his biography through from boyhood and youth, from his entrance into politics to the culmination of his career as President of the U.S.

A graduate of Harvard, Theodore Roosevelt studied Law for a year but gave it up to enter politics. In the political field he early became known for his expansionist and imperialist tendencies. The Civil War gave him timely publicity in his capacity as Lieutenant-Colonel of his own famous Rough Riders. From this point he advanced rapidly from Governor of New York State, to Vice-President, becoming President through the death of President McKinley.

As President, he made famous the "big stick" policy of American politics and imperialistic interpretation of the Munro Doctrine. It was during his period of office also that plans got under way for the Panama Canal. In many respects his career and policies are comparable to those of Franklin Roosevelt, notably in his preaching of military preparedness and his advocacy of universal military training.

MARGARET CURRIE TO ADDRESS CO-EDS

Margaret Currie, columnist of the Montreal Daily Star, will be guest speaker at a lecture sponsored by the program committee of the Women's Union on Wednesday, February fifth.

The lecture is open to all co-eds. The Women's Union has also sponsored this session other speakers including Melle de Mirabelle, former secretary to General de Gaulle, and Mrs. Dimsdale who spoke last Tuesday on "Britain Needs Aid Of Women."

Sadie Pleased with Plans Of Coming Festive Week

Stresses the Need for Original Ideas to Snare Males

By R. G. R.

Sadie Hawkins, the glamorous belle of the Ozarks, has expressed her admiration and delight at the number and variety of social functions that are to take place this coming week. She stated this and more in a lengthy telegram that was received here today. She is pleased to discover that there is something to suit every type of purse, the empty and the little more than empty, for the affairs range from the nickel tea-dance on Monday to whatever the individual girl conceals to be her pecuniary limit. There is not organized entertainment for every night in the week; but Sadie thinks that it is just as well that way, because it gives the co-eds an opportunity to think up their own devices for enticing Lil' Abner away from the sanctuary of his paternal home.

Maccabean Circle Social Tomorrow

The Maccabean Circle has the honour to be the first campus group to usher in the pulchritudinous damsel of Dogpatch. They will honour Sadie by holding a social tomorrow night at 3785 Westmount Blvd. It is not strictly Sadie Hawkins, however, and is open to any member in the club. The price of admission is 50 cents. DEAN HALL SPEAKS TO PSYCHOLOGISTS

'Psychology in Every Day Life' Will Be Topic of Meeting

Dean Hall of Sir George Williams College will address the Psychological Society at 8.00 p.m. next Thursday, Feb. 6, in the Grill Room of the McGill Union. His topic will be "Psychology in Every Day Life."

"It is appropriate," said Jack Bedford, President of the Psychological Society, "that Dean Hall should once again take part in a meeting of the McGill Psychological Society for he was one of its organizers and its first president during his student days at McGill."

"Psychology in Every Day Life" is a topic on which he is particularly qualified to speak in view of his intense and lasting interest in psychological problems and his broad experience in the education and social field. In his present position as Dean of Sir George Williams, he has undoubtedly had the opportunity to see many psychological problems develop, cope with and solved by students. He will speak from the point of view of an individual who has found psychology's worth in its application to every day life and not from the theoretical point of view."

Dr. Beach Leads Discussion Which Follows the Addresses

Last night the McGill Political Economy Club held its fifth meeting of the session in the Union Grill Room. The subject under discussion was "Trade Unionism in Canada." At 8.25 Stewart Willis, the president of the club, called the meeting to order and the program for the evening got under way when the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Willis then introduced the first speaker, Harrison Bennett, the secretary of the club and a third year honours student in Economics and Political Science.

Bennett in his paper dealt with the international aspect of trade unionism in Canada. He outlined its history and analysed in detail its advantages and disadvantages. The second speaker of the evening, (Continued on Page Four)

PROGRAM DISCUSSED BY STUDENTS' REVUE

The Students' Revue held a meeting last night at half past eight in the music room of the McGill Union. According to the discussions held the students' Revue promises "to be of a nature as yet unheralded on the McGill Campus." A tentative program was drawn up consisting of numerous skits all of which are to be of an original nature. Mandrake the Magician has been contacted and his performance secured as part of the evening's entertainment. A Ballet to consist solely of the men has been planned and a concerto of Chamber music will be given to entertain the more intellectually minded of the audience.

A proposal to include coeds in the Revue met with some opposition but after careful deliberation all present came to the conclusion that their presence would be a definite asset.

After the discussions, Joey Young, the Chairman, held an election, the results of which were: John Villiers, Secretary and Bob Pearman, Treasurer.

The meeting adjourned with the understanding to meet again in the McGill Union Grill Room Tuesday, February 4, at one o'clock.

Conference to be held in the McGill Union on February 8 at 2.30 p.m. Dr. Deck, who is both an explorer and a medical missionary, is known for his work in the Solomon Islands in the South Pacific. He is a graduate of Sydney University and has worked with the South Sea Evangelical Mission. In 1900 he served on a mission ship as engineer, and later as captain.

Engaged in Exploration.

He was engaged in the first exploration of the island of Rennell. Around the large inland lake on this island he made important archaeological and anthropological discoveries of a primitive civilization. This was dangerous work as there were both cannibals and head-hunters on the islands and many Christian Teachers were massacred.

Dr. Deck retired in 1927. He has been honored for his work in the South Pacific by the Royal Geographical Society. Since his retirement from active missionary work he has travelled and lectured and conducted conferences in the British Isles.

The Dean Returns

Dr. Charles W. Hendel's arrival at McGill for a short visit brings back to the university a man who, as a former professor and dean of the faculty of Arts and Science, was known to his students as one who shared with them at all times a full experience and a rich personality.

When Dr. Hendel gave up his post at McGill last year to take the specially created Chair of Moral Philosophy at Yale, he left a big gap in the university community; for it is rare that, as a dean, a man can draw on both wisdom and ready sympathy to appreciate the problems of Freshmen and Seniors. The same deep sincerity which marked his active interest in student problems was evidenced again in that extra effort which he gave to his work as a professor.

His friends, former students and associates at McGill are looking forward to his stay with expectation, and extend a hearty welcome to the "Dean." It is their hope as well as ours that during his short stay, we of McGill will once again be able to show him our appreciation for his splendid past services to the university.

Dr. Hendel was at McGill for over ten years; in fact it was in 1929 that he first came here to take the Macdonald chair of Moral Philosophy and Chairmanship of the Department of Philosophy. In 1937 he was appointed dean of the faculty of Arts and Science. His last four years at McGill, in the dean's office as administrator of the faculty, were marked by the energy with which he applied himself to faculty and student problems alike, at the same time continuing with his lectures in the Department of Philosophy.

Before coming to McGill, Dr. Hendel received his B.Litt. from Princeton in 1913, and his Ph.D. in 1917 from the same university. He served for a time with the United States forces during the last war and then, after a year as an Instructor of Philosophy at William's, returned to his Alma Mater with an appointment as an assistant professor. Three years after becoming Associate Professor of Philosophy, he came here.

In 1939, while still at McGill, Dr. Hendel was elected to the presidency of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association, a merited honour which McGill feels it may share with the "Dean" who, as author of several recognized works in his own field and an authority on the teaching of Jean Jacques Rousseau, has become a leading figure of contemporary social and political philosophy.

Although the "Dean" is making this visit primarily to address an open meeting of the Philosophical Society, we feel sure that this will also be a long awaited opportunity for mutual renewal of friendships and old associations.

Dr. Hendel's time is pre-empted by his work at Yale, where he is continuing with his research in the field of modern philosophy and social and political ethics—and incidentally ably promoting the British cause in the United States. However, we hope that he will find other opportunities to visit us again in the future, when he will again receive the welcome that we extend to him on this occasion.

WIDE-EYED IN GOTHAM

By Reuven Frank

(A C.U.P. Feature)

TO THE BARRICADES.

New York: At the World's Fair (may it rest in peace), freedom of speech was represented by a huge marble statue of a tall, handsome young man with nudist inclinations, with the pedestal teeming with relief figures of similar nudist proclivities—and all of them jabbering away so that you would wonder how they could hear each other. In Manhattan proper that same situation holds: freedom of speech has reduced his Grecian proportions (he looks rather seedy in fact) and put on some very old clothes, but the orators still jabber away so that no one of them can hear the other. Nor are they interested.

Anybody can buy an American flag for two-bits, pick a spot where he won't disrupt traffic, and talk. All up and down Broadway, long-haired anatics drool at each corner of the mouth and try to save your soul or convince you that you haven't one. The thousands of little parks and boulevards that dot the city have each their handful of messiahs, mountebanks and medicine men. Down on the lower east side, Sunday afternoon would be enlivened for many years by a little meek man who transformed himself into a ranting apostle of godlessness as soon as he mounted the soap-box.

"If there is a God," he would shout at the sky, "let him strike me down here and now! Let him kill me!" But if there was a God, he probably didn't think it worth the bother, and the atheist orator died a few months ago at the age of eighty, of purely natural causes.

Anticlimax

The real centres of soap-box art are Union Square and Columbus Circle. Union Square, strangely enough, was not named after any labour organization, although none of the speakers or the loungers feel anything but contempt for the employing class, but for the preservation of the Union. A statue of the late Mr. Lincoln, generally credited with saving the Union, dominates the scene, looking very sad and homelier than Raymond Massey.

Lately the most popular holder-forth has been an Indian who wears his hair in braids, and flaunts a faded blue shirt in the coldest weather. His people have been unjustly treated, and he feels very sad. Everyone also feels very sad, too. They know what it is to be unjustly treated, and a bond of sympathy flourishes and grows and everyone looks woe-begone. Well, as soon as the redskin has the doughty men of toil sniffing, he bends down. No, he is not going to bite the dust—merely to open a worn satchel and extract a bottle.

"I have here," he says, "a medicine perfected by my people which is guaranteed to cure..."

G.H.M.:

There is a little fellow with a paunch and glasses, a bald head and a loose bridge. Whenever he mentions a revered revolutionary, he removes his hat and reveals the bald head. And whenever he says "proletariat" the loose bridge comes in view as a handful of assorted incisors and bicuspid fly into the front row of his audience.

He can go on for hours. One of his hearers slips away for a moment and strolls nonchalantly towards the good humour man. He peeks furtively around lest a friend see him indulging in capitalist delicacies, and extracts a nickel from a worn change-purse. This he waves towards the g.h.m. with a hoarse croak of "Butter pecan."

The g.h.m. says, "Ten cents." Thereupon the prospective investor replaces the nickel in the worn purse, and measures the good humour man from head to foot with a baleful glare.

"Enemy of the working-classes!"

The Grandeur That Is Columbus Circle.

From 14th Street and Fourth Avenue, which is Union Square, Broadway cuts its diagonal course to 34th Street and Sixth Avenue, which is Herald Square (Macy's, Gimbels and Saks), to 58th Street and Seventh Avenue, which is Columbus Circle. After getting past Columbus Circle, Broadway is worn out, and thenceforth is just another wide street.

As has been indicated, Columbus Circle is formed by the confluence of three thoroughfares, the south-west corner of Central Park, a crowd of people and two cops. Not to mention the statue of Columbus, which is only recognized on Columbus Day, when the ward-healers assemble, and try to angle for Italian votes by speaking mightily of the grandeur that was Rome. This is usually an unsuccessful manoeuvre, since the Italian population doesn't go to Columbus Circle on Columbus Day, but spends the day at Coney Island.

Vest Pocket Caesars.

On the other 364 days of the year the talk-fest is purely amateur, or, at least, semi-professional. One of the oldest habits is an Ethiopian with a kinky beard who claims that he is the ten lost tribes, although he doesn't look it. He sells nothing, he buys nothing, and he has no use for money. I know what you are going to say, but he has no use for Ripley, either.

The circle also has assorted hate-inciters. The followers of Father Coughlin, Joe McWilliams, W. D. Pelley and other totalitarianists of the right gather and talk. If there is anything really interesting going on, the crowd ignores them. But if it is a pretty slow night, the crowd gathers round the little propaganda ministers, and before you know it, there's a riot. Whenever anyone bothers to listen to these guys there's a riot, so the cops run in the orators and the crowd goes home feeling cheated.

The revivalists and assorted religious emissaries are better represented here than down on 14th Street. Usually they have an audience of one, some poor inebriate sobbing quietly to himself as the accordion plays the old hymns. If there is an audience of two, he brought his jacinthos.

Hobo Politician.

Then there is Pork-Chops. "I didn't come here to save you. I come here for you to save me..." Pork-Chops is a bum. "Not a hobo: a bum, and I'm proud of it." He is chubby and short like La Guardia, so he is running for mayor. "When I'm mayor, that park over there will have steam-heated benches, and beer in all the taps... Why, no self-respecting bum would drink that water they serve..."

"There's too much talk about work these days. What wants to work? When I'm mayor nobody is going to work—" The crowd cheers, but Pork-Chops holds up his hand in an imperious gesture for silence. "—Except the cops... Yeah, you overgrown flatfoot... When I'll be mayor, we're going to sit by the fire-side and tell the President what to do..."

And with that note of triumph he descends, and passes the hat around. Pork-Chops for mayor, I say. What do you say?

For Lowbrows Only

By Trebor

From the title of this column you may think that I am a self-satisfied Artisan getting ready to give the Plumbers a high-pressure panning. But that is not the case.

I am not an Artisan speaking to an Engineer. Nor am I a long-haired citizen about to introduce my barbarian neighbours to the mysteries of Art. I am just a somewhat realistically minded person seeking the comfort of kinship with others of a similar nature. I am a lowbrow chatting with other lowbrows upon a subject that is usually reserved for the esoteric circles of the so-called intelligentsia to ponder over and make more esoteric by the exercise of their unintelligible intellectualism. That subject is the modern novel, and I am one who wants to rid the whole thing of its humbug.

Lowbrows are, among other things, those people from whom the line of duty has kept the undeniable pleasure and amazement of becoming fully acquainted with the modern novelist and his work. Lowbrows are people who read only for what immediate satisfaction they may find, and either know nothing about what they read, or else know quite a bit, but are frightened from their opinions by the sound and the fury of official tradition and the propaganda of snobs and Philistines.

It is to both classes of lowbrow that this column, which may prove to be weekly, is directed. To the former I shall try to spread what little information may be needed to make their reading hours more understandable. For the latter I shall attempt to analyze what may be called the "conventional point of view" (if anything conventional can justly be said to be the view of the critics in question), and thus, perhaps, give mental satisfaction to those who would prefer their own common sense opinions to the tendentious nihilities of the pretentious and stupid.

Whatever I may say in the weeks to come, I would like it understood that any similarity to, or very obvious dissimilarity from, the ideas expressed in any class of English in this University is purely coincidental. I am neither echoing nor criticising, commending or abusing. I am standing apart, expressing my own opinions, and offering them to other lowbrows for whatever they may be worth.

If you think I get off the track at some place or other, let me know. In the material ahead of us there are many opportunities for derailing, to which calamity, indeed, anyone venturing upon a discussion of the modern novel is particularly susceptible. But for all of that, I would like to keep running as well as possible. We have to divide the general field of novels into particular types, discuss these types, discuss authors who are predominately one type or another, and when all that is over try to develop a scale of values. There is a great deal of material to cover, and many places to go wrong. So your criticisms should be valuable. I will no doubt say many things with which you will violently disagree, but so much the better. If this column can be turned into a forum of discussion, I will be the last to complain.

So far this has been all introduction, and you must be as tired of it as I am. So until next week then, when we shall get properly down to business...

ODE TO A BREAKFAST EGG

Sweet egg, reposing upon the nut brown toast (Whose charred black robe was shed in my sink of white),

You are my gustatory Song of Songs, You are my visual 7 a.m. delight! Relaxed, serene on your carbohydrate couch, Your round breast rises above your white frilled skirt

And temple me... I stab its smooth and tender skin

And watch your molten gold, your heart's blood squirt...

At last your mine! No one will steal you now! (Yet conservation clouds a bit my bliss...)

How can I ever gather you to myself When you are trekking over the plate like this?

Oh, lovely, murdered egg, which but for me, Might yet have been a chick, I have a yen To know how ought as exquisite as thee Could come from Min, our dour, speckled hen!

Music Notes

Reginald Stewart with Quartet Tonight

Reginald Stewart, the well-known Canadian pianist and conductor is to be the guest artist at tonight's McGill String Quartet concert. The program of this, the fourth in a series of six chamber music recitals under the auspices of the Montreal Festivals, will consist of: the G major Quartet by Haydn, opus 54, No. 1; Darius Milhaud's A Minor Quartet; and the Schumann Piano Quintet in E flat, with Mr. Stewart at the piano.

Huberman Tickets Still Available

Tickets for Sunday night's charity recital by the distinguished Polish violinist Bronislaw Huberman, are still available to McGill students at special reduced rates. Today will be the last day on which these can be purchased, and anyone interested should get in touch with the Feature Editor or with Winnifred Fairhead at the Daily office. Prices range from 75 cents to $1.50.

BRAIOWSKY PROGRAM

The program for the Alexander Brailowsky piano recital to be presented at Plateau Hall on Monday is announced as follows: Concerto in D Minor (Vivaldi); Sonata in A Major (Scarlatti); Sonata in D Major (Liszt); Ondine (Ravel); L'Oiseau Joyeux (Debussy); Improvisation in F Minor; Danse Rituelle (De Falla); Fantasia in F Minor; Waltz in E Flat; Nocturne in D Flat Major; Polonaise in A Flat Major (Chopin).

Mr. Huberman's program will consist of two sonatas for violin and piano: the 'Kreutzer' Sonata of Beethoven and the popular A Major Sonata of Cesar Franck, together with shorter pieces by Bach, Chopin and Szymanowski.

ABOUT PROFESSORS

Shocking though it may seem, the suggestion has been made that the relationship between the professor and his classes is not based primarily upon affection. In support of this revolutionary theory, it has been demonstrated that the average student is not desolated when he learns that his professor is sick.

For experimental purposes, an investigator entered a class assembled at the beginning of a lecture hour. "Dr. Glubb regrets that he will be unable to meet his class today," he told it quietly, "as he has been suddenly stricken with pneumonia, cholera, rabies, and just a dash of falling hair."

Now, it would be only natural to expect that the class after a moment of stunned silence, would file out sadly, with a tear glistening in the eye and a sob struggling in the throat. Was that the reaction? Not quite. The windows shook with one great shout of glee, the floor trembled with the pounding of many feet, and the investigator was nearly killed in the rush of the happy, cheering crowd spewing merrily into the hall.

Cold Blooded
 Most professors are keenly aware of the cold-blooded attitude of watchful waiting that marks their classes. A sneeze or a cough will invariably cause their students to stir expectantly, exchange significant glances, and more or less smack their chops in anticipation.

And many a professor has folded under the strain. Take the case of Dr. Palsey Sycamore Roundhouse. Roundhouse had taught for 30 years without ever missing a lecture. Yet his successive classes never relaxed the pressure, never gave up hope, and, one day, he broke like an old shoe-lace.

"You'll never get me, damn you!" he screamed suddenly and stepped out of the window which a quick-thinking student had obligingly opened for him.

Dr. Hymenoptera V. Bluebottle, distinguished professor of entomology, buckled up in a different way. The first indication his students had that their campaign was successful was when he started rubbing his hind legs together like a house-fly. Soon he was taking up most of the hour by running around the room, buzzing noisily, and flapping his arms up and down with great enthusiasm. When they tried to catch him, he climbed up the wall and refused to come down.

Finally they sprayed him with fly-tox, and he died of shock—Ubysey.

An interesting note from our navy is the little story of the British effort to cure the sailors' aversion to going to sea on Friday.

At one time, many years ago, the superstition grew to such proportions that the British decided to prove its fallacy. They laid the keel of a new vessel on Friday, launched her on Friday, named her H.M.S. Friday and sent her to sea on Friday.

The scheme was perfect except in one particular—neither ship nor crew were ever heard of again.

WATER POLO

Lists are being circulated among all Platoons by the Platoon Sports Representatives in order to assure all Water Polo Enthusiasts an opportunity of representing their Company in the coming Inter-Company Water Polo League. Anyone who is a fair swimmer is invited to try out for the Company Teams regardless of whether or not he has played the game before. If the Circulating Lists happen to miss you, you can still be counted in by signing your name on the Master List posted on the Locker Room Notice Board. For detailed information consult your Platoon or Company Sports Representative or get in touch with Bob Kingsland, manager, at WI. 1658, or Pete Bourne, captain, at WI. 2010, of the Swimming and Water-Polo Club.

Sports Representatives are asked to complete their lists immediately and to turn them over to the Athletic Office at the earliest possible date.

INDOOR SOFTBALL LEAGUE

As the Volley Ball League nears its completion and the Sadie Hawkins' Week makes men's fancies turn to love and hence to the Spring interest is growing in the prospects of an Indoor Softball League. The original thought was to hold the league on an Inter-Company basis but evidence seems to point to sufficient interest to warrant both an Inter-Platoon and an Inter-Company League.

In order that all may be in readiness for an early start in what shows every sign of being one of the most popular leagues of the season, Sports Representatives are being asked to canvass their Platoons for all likely Team Prospects.

If you want to play Softball let your Platoon Sports Representative know at once.

C Seconds Lose Game To A Hockeyists by 6-2

Smith Tallies Three, Reilly Two, for A Company

In a wild and wooly game, A Company defeated C Company last night in a "B" Class Inter-Company hockey game, 6 to 2 at McTavish St. Rink. The Artsmen had only seven men present, but despite their short-handedness managed to win out over a numerically larger C Company squad. The game was restricted to two periods by mutual consent. . . . It started out rather closely fought and at the end of the first period the score was tied at 1 to 1.

C Company started the scoring when after five minutes of play K. Montford managed to nudge the puck past J. Shecter while a scramble was on in front of A Company's goal. He scored on a pass from Tannenbaum. There was no more scoring until the close of the period when B. Smith of A Company scored the first of the three goals he netted. Smith shot from the blue line and although Brennan apparently had the shot covered, it struck his hip and glanced in.

The second period provided all the fireworks as far as A Company was concerned but was the end of C Company's hopes. Bryson Smith banged in another tally along with Ernie Skutezky's goal to make it three to one. C Company's defence then crumpled entirely as M. Reilly rifled two goals past Brennan. The skating was fast and furious all the while and body checks were liberal and included one bloody nose being handed out to E. Skutezky. The brand of hockey was not of the best as a light snow and previous games created enough of a film of snow to make stick-handling difficult. Both goalies were having trouble seeing the puck. Smith's third goal was scored as a result of this. He let loose a ferocious line drive shot at center ice in the closing minutes of play. Brennan wasn't able to follow the flight of the puck and turned and ducked. However he wasn't fast enough for the puck struck him on his jaw and went in the nets. After a couple of minutes play was resumed and J. W. Dods scored the second and last of C Company's goals. The game ended a minute later.

The line up:
C Company. A Company.
L. Brennan...goal... J. Shecter
W. Ponnam...defence... B. Smith
L. Hanson...defence... E. Skutezky
I. Glenn...forward... D. King
S. Tannenbaum...forward... D. Reilly
K. Montford...forward... E. Morris
A Company subs: A. Wilson.
C Company subs: J. W. Dods, J. Denny, G. Bastido.
Referee: Horace Graves.
Timekeeper: Doug Campbell.

After the completion of this schedule single and double championship tournaments will be conducted.

Swimming Class To Start Soon

Coeds Start Wednesday in Montreal High Pool

With all the innovations that have been introduced in the Physical Education Department during the past term it is only fitting that some provision should be made for the non-swimmer. With this idea in mind the members of the department have organized a new learn to swim class which will commence next Wednesday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Montreal High School Swimming pool, and will continue on for eight weeks.

Although it is realized that it is impossible to become a proficient swimmer in the short period of eight weeks, yet under the able direction of Miss Roods Gregory who has taken over the coaching duties, foundations can be laid for a complete mastery of the art next summer. For not only is swimming a great deal of fun but it is also one of the most valuable exercises there is. It prevents a non-swimmer from becoming a danger not only to himself but to the person who attempts to rescue her.

Of late there has been a great deal of instruction given concerning the care of patients, and the Physical Education Department has finishing touches to their training for the Big Hockey event against the Engineers on Wednesday.

ARMY SKI MEET AT ST. SAUVEUR

Montreal Units to Take Part

M.R.T.B. to Enter Four Man Team — Meet Sunday

An innovation to the north country will take place this Sunday when a military ski meet will take place at St. Sauveur. It is hoped that many local units will participate in the meet. The M.R.T.B. will be represented by one team at least, and should have another as well. The team which will carry McGill's honours to Dartmouth next month will represent the Reserve Battalion this Sunday. The team will carry Don Tyrol, Fred Moore, Don Staniforth and Doug Mann. A second team of Hambrook, Hugessen, Stairs and Capper could very easily make up a potent force as a second team.

The meet will be sponsored by the McGill Ski Club and the Red Birds Ski Club. The race will begin at 12 a.m. and will follow somewhat the same trail as that used by the M.R.T.B. last week.

Those wishing to enter should get in touch with Jack Bailey. Entrants will meet at the Red Birds Club at St. Sauveur. All skiers of classes A, B and C are urged to enter.

As four man teams are to be the limit, the McGill Ski Platoon should be able to field more than one or two teams. The Black Watch will probably fill an important spot in the meet and the good work started at last week's hockey game should be kept up.

The ski meet at St. Margaret last Sunday showed a few of McGill's stalwarts plying towards the finish well up with the field. Don Staniforth placed fourth in the combined C class meet, when he won a tough first place in the Downhill. It was an excellent bit of skiing as those who saw him do it can testify. However he wasn't as successful in the Slalom, and didn't place in it. Art Bruneau topped third place among the juniors. He has a great future in the skiing world and put up a good fight. In the Combined A and B classes Harry Scott placed third. He was 4th in the Downhill and 11th in the Slalom. Doug Mann fell by the wayside when he ended up in 15th place in the combined. Bob Townsend, too, was not up to his regular efficiency. Altogether the Redmen didn't fare too well, but should get going shortly.

McGill's Coed Ski Team fared rather better last Sunday when they travelled to Valley Farm and lifted the crown from the snowy brows of the Penguin Ski Club in the Seignior Club Meet. They came through in a big way by placing first in the Downhill and second in the Slalom. Sylvia Grove led the team in the Downhill but received a penalty in the Slalom. Frances McLeod aided and abetted the cause by finishing in a good fourth place in the Slalom. Good skiing conditions were in evidence here as elsewhere and provided a beautiful field for the girls' victory.

Last Sunday St. Sauveur bristled with the tense atmosphere of a McGill Ski Meet. A fair crowd of competitors were on the scene early for a big day of intercompany competition. "D" Company came through again and as usual couldn't be stopped. After last week's victory they again went away from the rest of the field and came up with another win in their teeth. The Slalom saw 20 leave the barrier in a gale and watched Johnny Clapper romp home at the head of the pack in the good time of 60.6 minutes. This put A company back into the picture but one win wasn't good enough to give them the victory margin. Ted Gold of "E" and Bob Hambrook of "D" placed second and third.

Of the twelve who started in the Cross Country the first two came away with a nice margin over the remainder of the field. The first and last times showed a difference of thirty minutes which may show something or other; probably condition. Bob Hambrook led in this field and a "D" company mate, Ted Hugessen, followed nearly two minutes later. Dennis Stairs finished up in the third spot to give "D" company a strangle hold on the title. This year's freshmen showed up well and are great material upon which to rely in coming years.

This Sunday a military ski meet will be the feature of St. Sauveur (Continued on Page Four)

MACS' 3-2 WIN DOWNS PLTN. 22

Volleyball Playoffs Show Stiff Competition Between Companies

Platoons 11, 13, 26, and MacDonald II Also Win Games

The last of the preliminary games came to a close on Wednesday afternoon in the Inter-Platoon Volleyball League and 16 teams qualified for the Knock-Out Tournament. These teams are Platoons No. 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 18, 19, 22, 23, 26, and Macdonald College No. 1 and No. II. Every Company with the exception of the Independents had at least one team in the finals and some had two and even three and one Company succeeded in getting four of its teams into the playoffs. The Company in question is "C" Company which is represented by Platoons No. 12, 13, 14, and 15. The only mar on the record of this Company was the failure of Platoon No. 11 to show up for games which necessitated its being dropped from the league shortly after the second round of preliminaries began. Naturally this resulted in the loss of many good points but despite this handicap the Company Point-Participation Totals are higher than any other Company in the League.

Company Standings at the completion of the preliminaries are as follows:

C Company	180 points
B Company	175 points

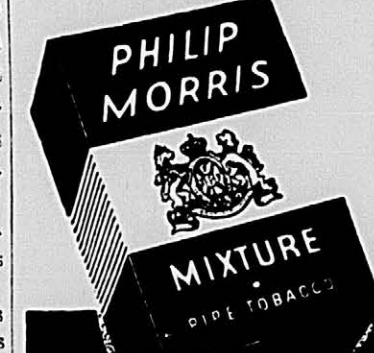

A Company	145 points
F Company	133 points
D Company	95 points
E Company	70 points
Independents	50 points
Platoon Standings are as follows:
First Place (tied with 55 points each)	Platoons No. 5, 6, 12, 13, and 22.
Second Place (with 50 points)	Platoon No. 10.
Third Place (tied with 45 points each)	Platoons No. 4, 8, 14 and 26.
Fourth Place (tied with 40 points each)	Platoons No. 18 and 19.
Fifth Place (tied with 35 points each)	Platoons No. 15 and 23.
Sixth Place (with 30 points)	Platoon No. 27.
Seventh Place (with 25 points)	Platoon No. 3.

Swimming meet that is to take place during the very near future. It will be remembered that in the past a fee of $1.50 has been charged in order to furnish towels and suits. However an arrangement has been made whereby it will not be necessary to make this payment. There is no fee connected with the course, but the only conditions required is that all coeds who enroll are requested to attend the whole series of eight lessons, and to supply their own caps. The lesson will commence at 4 p.m. and will last till 5.30 and coeds who are interested are requested to sign the list that has been posted on the R.V.C. Notice Board.

SADIE PLEASED WITH PLANS

Co-ed Issue of the "Daily" Sunday, February 2.

Although this is an issue which is put out by co-eds alone, there is no reason why that night these co-eds should not bring down the lights of their lives to stand and look, and even perhaps to discover that the fair sex really can set to work when the notion strikes them. These males, too, would be delighted to get a free drink. Regular reporters are expected to be down, ready to start work, at 7 p.m.

Nickel Hop In Union Monday, February 3.

Monday afternoon from 4.30 to 6.30 the members of R.V.C. '41 and '42 are holding a tea-dance which will set back Sadie to the tune of five cents per person, in the Union Grillroom. Those sponsoring the affair state that all students are permitted to attend, whether invited by a fair one or not, and that all of these self-same fair ones should not be reticent and bashful about inviting people, owing to the very low price, for that would be defeating the whole idea behind the event, that of getting out as many people as possible to have a good time without having to worry about denting the allowance. Refreshments may be obtained at the cafeteria.

In the evening is the Sadie Slide atop Mount Royal, that includes skiing, skating, tobogganing and then dancing in socks in the Park Slide Clubhouse. Price—One dollar per couple.

Tuesday night (after the War Service Program for Women) and

The Spinsters' Spree Friday, February 7.

Whee, the Spree! Gee! This, the event of the week, takes place Friday night at R.V.C. There is only one solemn note to throw a pall over the joyous proceedings: it marks the end of this week of hilarity and extra good fun for the long-suffering male. Herb Morrissey and his orchestra supply the music—and the price, only $1.25 a couple, girls. Surely you can afford it and so make someone happy.

TRADE UNIONISM IS CONSIDERED

James Lewtas, then dealt with the national aspect of the topic. Lewtas, the treasurer of the club and also a third year honours student in Economics and Political Science, traced the growth, history, advantages and disadvantages of this more restricted consideration of "Trade Unionism in Canada."

After these addresses, a short recess was announced, when refreshments were served. Then the meeting was resumed, with Dr. E. F. Beach of the School of Commerce leading the informal discussion of the topic. After this discussion, which the president enthusiastically described as illuminating and inspiring, the meeting was adjourned. The next meeting will be held Feb. 27, when "War Finances" will be the topic.

so the offer was gladly accepted.

So, in a "do or die" spirit and fortified with the knowledge that the same situation could not arise again, a charming blond who sits beside your reporter in his Sanskrit class, was approached and asked the same question. "Certainly," she said, "I'll gladly go with you to the Slide and the Spree."

"But it's not for myself but for a dental student that I am trying to get an invitation." Her facial tint turned from its usual lovely peach to a glowing red. "Oh," she said, "you damned (yes, she really swore) heart-breaker! Here you had built up my hopes—for I hadn't dared to ask you before—and then dashed them to the ground. Go out with a dentist? Never!"

Thus it seems impossible to arrange a date for him. Co-eds, however, should not be so adamant; surely such a sad case must touch their hearts. What if these lads in Dentistry are not the best fellows around the college? They ought, at least, to make an evening enjoyable. Any co-eds interested in helping this hapless fellow should telephone PL 7751, local 128 and ask for "Ken."

DR. DECK WILL ADDRESS IVCF

ish Isles, Africa, Europe and North America.

The conference will begin at 2.30 on Saturday afternoon and Dr. Deck will address the meeting at 3. Discussion groups will be held until 6, when dinner will be served in the Union at regular prices. An evening session will take place from 7.30 until 10.

Other leaders will include Mr. O.

C. Jensen, a graduate of Dallas, Texas, Seminary; Mr. Evan Bogart, B.Sc. (Alberta); Mr. A. J. Nesbitt, of Montreal, prominent Canadian financier and head of Nesbitt Thompson Co. Ltd.; Miss Eva McKimmon, B.A., who is on the staff of the Montreal High School; and Miss Patricia Lister, Assoc. Arts, Quebec Secretary I.V.C.F.

Students from Queens, Ottawa and Bishops have been invited, announced Gordon W. Thomas, president of the McGill Christian Fellowship local branch of the I.V.C.F. "There will be no registration fee," he stated, "and of course all McGill students are invited."

COSMOS STAGE WALTZ CONTEST

folk singers and dancers, a South American dancing team and some Chinese guitar music.

The surroundings will be in keeping with the mood of the evening, having been carefully blended by an international committee of decorators headed by Miss Tania Schiffrers who has studied decorative art in Paris for some years, and Miss Irena Eiger who has been connected with many large dances in Warsaw. These will be assisted by Louis Gravel and Anthony Lewis, who are students in Architecture, and by several others.

The music will be provided by Tom Ford and his ten piece orchestra and a distinguished company of patrons will be present. Owing to the generally attractive evening, and the exceptional list of prizes, the sale of tickets is progressing much better than was anticipated, and the Committee recommends that those who are coming should make their reservations early in order to get the best tables while they are still available. The tickets which cost $1.50 per couple may be purchased from any members of the club executive, from Bill Gentleman, or from any of the following hostesses: Misses Francis Cox, Ruth McDonald, Ivy Lawrence, Katherine McLean, Marian Francis, Lucy Sim, Judith Jaffe, Mary Eddy, Mitzi Leipoldt, Stephanie Zuperko and Frieda Bindman. All profits realized from this dance will be given to the McGill war effort.

when most of the Montreal regiments will compete including the M.R.T.B. The meet is sponsored by the McGill Outing Club and the Red Birds Ski Club. The race will begin at 12 noon E.D.T. and will cover a 7-mile course some of which was traversed by the M.R.T.B. last week. Each group will enter a four-man team of the A., B., or C classes. Those who are participating should have been in touch with Jack Bailey yesterday. All entrants will meet at the Red Birds' cabin at St. Sauveur. They will find among others, members of the Black Watch and of the R.M.R. regiments. If a repeat performance of a victory over the Black Watch can be accomplished the Redmen can stick their chests out a little bit farther.

Cote des Neiges Ski Jump will watch Punch Bott defend his title

Saturday afternoon at 2.30. The event, the Laurentian Ski Zone Jumping Championship. At stake, besides his title, a nice big record of 160 feet. McGill should be represented, probably by Chris Mamen, Fred Moore, Karre Olsen, and John Foster. The Jump is one of the highlights of the skiing season and strong competition is expected with McGill well up on the list.

"E" Company's undefeated first hockey team added another notch to their belts when they set back the "C" Company squad by a decisive score of 5-2, last Wednesday evening. Stars of the battle proved to be Owen, Pete, Ritchie, the latter of Black Watch winning fame. One thing noticeable at the game was the lack of subs on both teams. The fact that a second league has been formed didn't seem to have much affect, but it seems that the second group would make a good drawing source for shorthanded squads in the bigger group.

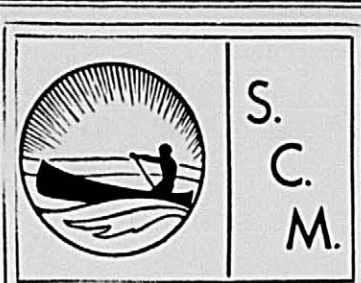

The same evening saw a fixture in the junior loop with "F" company coming out on top after a hard fought game with "D." It was "D" second straight defeat. As "F" Company found themselves slightly handicapped when only five of their players appeared, "D" Company very kindly gave them the services of Le Febvre who promptly scored the first counter for his new team. Langevin rapped in the remaining two and Norrish finished the evening's fun with two assists.

Tuesday noon found "A" Company forfeiting their lunch to take "C" Company into camp to the tune of 6-5. Earl Smith paced the squad to victory when he banged in two goals and assisted on two others. Borrowers had two and two also, and Jack Keay got a goal and two assists. The game was a fast one with both teams see-sawing back and forth with "A" Company leading until near the end of the second period. In the third, C Company increased their advantage to two goals and "A" came from behind in a blaze of glory to forge ahead and win the tussle 6-5.

That evening the Metavish street rink was the scene of a second team fixture and found "A" Company facing "B". The game was rather slow and the teams showed their lack of practice. Smith for the Artsmen and Gertler for "B" Company were the two outstanding men on the ice.

Reports have it that the team that will represent McGill at St. Sauveur in the Military run this weekend will be Don Tyrol, Fred Moore, Don Stanforth, and Doug Mann. A second team could help a lot too and a team composed of Hambrook, Hugessen, Stairs and Capper might do very well. Let's see some action along this line.

A return match for the Black Watch and the McGill squad has been the topic of conversation around the various dives and hovels where such things are talked about, for some time now. The latest dope on the situation reveals the fact that Major Ibbotson as well as defenceman Eric fleet, is itching to get his hands on the Red Raiders who handed them such a heavy setback last week. In fact, both these honoured gents said they would be glad of a return match at any time at all. The feeling is by no means one-sided. The local boys are just as anxious to get going again as their defeated rivals, and a return match would certainly
